LATER, LETTERMAN!

Television. After 33 years on the air and more than 6,000 episodes under his belt, famed "Late Show" host David Letterman taped his last show on Wednesday evening. Tina Fey, Jim Carrey and Julia Louis-Dreyfus were among the stars to attend the show's final filming. PAGE 02

Letterman wraps up last 'Late Show'

Farewell. New York says goodbye to Dave after 33 years hosting late-night television.

The plaza outside the "Late Show with David Letterman" was oddly quiet early Wednesday morning, with few tourists seeking out will call tickets, and news trucks swarming. But by mid-afternoon, Broadway between West 53rd and 54th Streets was full of enthusiastic fans welcoming celebrity guests and waiting to give the famed late-night talk-show host his final send-off.

Notable names seen entering the final taping included Tina Fey, Jim Carrey, Peyton Manning, Barbara Walters and Julia Louis-Dreyfus.

After 33 years on the air and more than 6,000 episodes, Letterman, 68, taped his last show on Wednesday evening. Stephen Colbert, formerly of "The Colbert Report," will succeed Letterman.

Sullivan Theater, Rupert Jee rang up a construction worker for a cup of coffee on Wednesday morning, selling Letterman T-shirts to fans and indulging tourists' questions about the late-night king.

Jee, a frequent guest on the show for the past 20 years, appeared on Letterman's penultimate show on Tuesday night, sharing his favorite "Late Show" moments.

"You know, I'm never good at being on camera, so I was more nervous than anything. I just keep my mouth shut and listen to what he says," Jee said. "The last few weeks have been busy. It's like it was the first day he had arrived, you know, so now it's the final days and equally busy. Business has been good, but I'd give that all back if he'd stay a few more years. It's unfortunate, but all good things come to an end."

Reed Sandridge stood outside the building, holding an unstamped letter, addressed to Letterman.

"I just thanked him for making us laugh and entertaining us for the last 30 years," said Sandridge, who has been writing one handwritten letter a day all year. "You kind of feel like you know him, you've been through his heart surgery. You know the crazy woman who used to break into his homes."

Joe Toplyn, who worked as a writer on both NBC's

"Late Night with David Letterman" and CBS' "Late Show," told Metro one of his most memorable experiences was writing a bit where Letterman appeared to be at his desk in the studio, but when the camera pulled back, he was doing the segment from the back of a flatbed truck going 60 mph on a highway in New Jersey.

"That's a great example of Dave willing to try anything and breaking the form of television," Toplyn said. "It was surprising and daring."

"As long as I can remember he's been on the air. He used to have this phrase he used to say: 'There's not a man, woman or child in these United States of America who doesn't enjoy a nice cold, refreshing beverage.' I would just repeat his little phrases as a kid."

Reed Sandridge, 41,
Washington, D.C.

"My favorite Letterman moment was when he slam-banged Rush Limbaugh and suggested maybe he's full of a lot of hot gas. Do you remember that? That was funny."

Tom Barlow, 50, Astoria

"The moment I remember is the Cher tattoos. I'm a huge fan of Johnny Carson. I think Jimmy Fallon is extremely talented, he's probably my favorite that I watch now."

Protest

Fast-food workers rally outside wage board meeting

Fast-food workers from across New York City rallied Wednesday morning outside the New York State Department of Labor, where Gov. Andrew Cuomo's wage board was meeting for the first time.

Angry protesters demonstrating / JENNA POPE

The rally came one day after Los Angeles, the second-largest city in the country, voted to raise the minimum wage to $15 from $9 over the next five years.

Organizers said hundreds of fast-food workers and activists rallied in Lower Manhattan, joined by City Comptroller Scott Stringer and Lieutenant Gov. Kathy Hochul.

Cuomo said he's directed Acting State Labor Commissioner Mario J. Musolino to assemble a wage board to consider raising the minimum wage for fast-food workers and hear public testimony. The board will hold public hearings in New York, Buffalo, Long Island and Albany through the end of June, and present findings to the governor within three months.

Craig Pickering / GETTY IMAGES

I was always the second-to-last kid picked in gym class.

I blamed it on my parents; my mom told me she was also infamous for her lack of athletic talent.

Finally, I had the chance to settle once and for all whether my genes were to blame when I got an e-mail from DNAFit: "DNAFit's non-invasive saliva test allows the optimal diet and exercise program to be developed, personal to you and your genetics, to maximize results."

I swabbed my cheek and sent it in for analysis, taking all of two minutes.

A few weeks later, my results were back and it was time for me to chat with Craig Pickering, an Olympic sprinter and sports scientist.

Pickering explained how the company comes up with its fitness and diet recommendations. "All of the genes have at least three peer review studies behind them — some have 200, but they all have at least three," he said. "We are certain the genes have the effect we say they have."

DNAFit examines a trait, such as sensitivity toward carbohydrates or pace of post-exercise recovery, and lists the genes responsible.

I learned that my body was better suited for power exercises than endurance exercises and that I had a "very high" VO2 max score, which measures how effectively a person's body uses oxygen during exercise.

"It means it would potentially take you less training to get fit than it takes me," said Pickering, to my surprise. "Your genes are theoretically better than mine, and I'm an Olympic runner."

I also learned that I had a very low risk for developing weight issues from fats and oils.

"You can probably put butter on everything," said Pickering.

Crime

Mugging marks fourth in Central Park this month

An early morning mugging marked the fourth such incident in Central Park this month, police said.

The victim, 69, was walking home in the area of 77th Street and Center Drive when a man grabbed his shirt and said, "Do you have anything of value? Give me your watch."

The suspect fled with the watch, and is still at large, police said.

Earlier this month, police arrested two teens accused of punching a 17-year-old girl in the face and robbing her of her iPhone and purse on the Heckscher Playground.

Police have circulated a sketch of a suspect who allegedly pulled a knife on a woman at 109th St. and East Drive and stole her wallet.

Former DEA agents secretly ran NJ strip club: Feds Charged.

Authorities say the two government employees were hush hush about their strip joint.

Twins Plus Go Go Lounge

U.S. authorities announced charges on Wednesday against a former Drug Enforcement Administration supervisor and a technology specialist at the agency for failing to disclose their ownership stake in a New Jersey strip club.

David Polos and Glen Glover, the DEA employees, made false statements to the government by not disclosing they were part owners of Twins Plus Go-Go Lounge in South Hackensack, according to a complaint filed in federal court in Manhattan.

The club features scantily clad and sometimes topless women, many of whom were undocumented immigrants illegally in the United States, the complaint said.

Prosecutors said the men did not disclose their role at the club during 2011 background checks conducted to discover any outside employment that could create concerns about their proximity to crime or their risk of being blackmailed.

Manhattan U.S. Attorney Preet Bharara said the men kept their jobs secret from the DEA, "betraying the oaths they had taken and creating needless risk for the agency they worked for."

Both men surrendered to the FBI on Wednesday and were released without bail after a court hearing.

Avraham Moskowitz, Polos' lawyer, called the charges "unwarranted and meritless." Glover's lawyer said he was innocent.

The case was unveiled a month after the Obama administration announced that Michele Leonhart, the DEA's administrator, would step down after being grilled by a congressional panel about sex parties attended by agents in Colombia with prostitutes funded by drug cartels.

Five things you need to know

New video surfaces of Freddie Gray arrest

A new video has surfaced revealing a key part of the arrest of Freddie Gray, the Baltimore black man whose death from injuries he sustained while in police custody led to days of protests and a federal investigation.

The video, shot by a bystander and posted on The Baltimore Sun's website on Wednesday, shows officers putting Gray in leg shackles and handcuffs before placing him back in a police van headfirst and on his stomach.

Gray died on April 19 from spinal injuries suffered during his arrest a week earlier on April 12. His death sparked protests and rioting in the largely black city and heightened national tensions over police treatment of minorities.

Officers arrested Gray in west Baltimore for possessing a switchblade knife. They put him in a transport van without securing him with a seatbelt, Baltimore State's Attorney Marilyn Mosby said this month in announcing charges.

The video lasts a few seconds and shows the van stopped a block away from the arrest site.

Gray is half-way out of the wagon, his stomach flat on the floor and his legs hanging off the back.

About 1,000 weapons found at Texas gang fight

About 1,000 weapons including firearms and knives have been recovered from the scene of a deadly Sunday battle between rival motorcycle gangs in the Texas city of Waco that left nine people dead, a police spokesman told CNN.

Gang members hid weapons in bags of potato chips and in bathrooms at the Twin Peaks restaurant, where they attacked each other.

"These were vicious gang members that were in our city," Waco police Sgt. Patrick Swanton said, adding an AK-47 rifle was among the weapons recovered.

Man who flew gyrocopter to US Capitol faces up to nine and a half years in prison

The Florida man who flew a gyrocopter onto the grounds of the U.S. Capitol in April faces up to nine and a half years in prison after being indicted by a federal grand jury.

Douglas Hughes, a 61-year-old mail carrier from Ruskin, Florida, was indicted on six charges including violation of the registration requirements for an aircraft and violation of national defense airspace, the U.S. Justice Department said.

His April 15 flight was maybe the most high-profile of several recent security lapses in the nation's capital. REUTERS

Man tasered, arrested at LAX

A man who was not cooperating with Transportation Security Administration officers in a terminal at Los Angeles International Airport was tasered and arrested on Wednesday, an airport police spokeswoman said.

The man was taken to a local hospital for treatment following the incident, Los Angeles Airport police Sgt. Belinda Joseph said in a statement.

Joseph said the man, who was not identified by authorities, was not cooperating with TSA officers in a screening area of Terminal 6 at LAX.

Bin Laden fixated on attacking US interests: Documents

Intel. The documents were part of a cache seized by U.S. commandos who conducted the raid on bin Laden's house.

The compound of Osama bin Laden. / GETTY IMAGES

Osama bin Laden was fixated on attacking U.S. targets and pressured al Qaeda groups to heal local rivalries and focus on that cause, according to documents the United States says were seized in his hideout in Pakistan and released on Wednesday.

The documents published by U.S. intelligence also contained details of purported negotiations between al Qaeda, its allies in the Pakistani Taliban and representatives of Pakistani intelligence and what seemed to be an al Qaeda job application.

A July 2010 letter showed that bin Laden pressed al Qaeda in Yemen, one of the group's more active affiliates, to make peace with the government and focus on America.

Bin Laden's view was that Al Qaeda in the Arabian Peninsula (AQAP) ought to sign a truce with Yemeni authorities or arrange an accommodation in which Yemeni authorities would leave the group alone "in exchange for focusing on America."

"The purpose is to focus on striking inside America and its interest abroad, especially oil-producing countries, to agitate public opinion and to force the U.S. to withdraw from Afghanistan and Iraq," according to a summary of the letter by a bin Laden associate identified as "Atiyah."

Also seized were official U.S. passport application forms, formal U.S. indictments of al Qaeda-related figures, U.S. government accounts of al Qaeda's organization and details of the U.S. Embassy in Pakistan's "Toys for Tots" program.

Hotbed of rights fight. Gay rodeo tests tolerance in Arkansas

Members of the International Gay Rodeo Association / REUTERS

On a clear Arkansas spring afternoon after a day of horseback riding, Wade Earp sighed and said, "I wish we didn't have to have a gay rodeo. I wish we could just rodeo."

Earp was a contestant at the International Gay Rodeo event held last month in Arkansas, a Bible Belt state on the front lines of the fight over gay rights and one of the 13 U.S. states where same-sex marriage is not recognized.

"Everybody deserves equal treatment. Everybody deserves equal rights," said Earp, 45, a native of Benton, Arkansas, where he was raised in a fundamentalist Christian denomination, and a competitor in barrel racing, calf roping and steer riding.

The 16th Diamond State Rodeo held in Little Rock drew 75 contestants, far outnumbering spectators, from a dozen states and Canada, all hoping to qualify for the International Gay Rodeo 2016 finals in Las Vegas.

"For years, no one would allow us to advertise it," said Sandy Bidwell, president of the Diamond State event, for fear protesters would create a disturbance.

"My attitude is let them. It's free advertising."

This year, they put up a sign directing traffic to the event, and no protesters came.

For two days, gays and lesbians and at least one transgender man competed in barrel racing and bull riding on the soft soil of a fairgrounds arena at the rodeo that looked like just about every small-scale rodeo held across the country.

The arena's railings were festooned with the banners of corporate sponsors advertising products such as Bud Light beer, Jack Daniels whiskey and Gun Oil personal lubricant.

The contentious Arkansas debate over same-sex unions "has drawn our community in Arkansas closer than ever," organizer Bidwell said.

Bidwell, 68, and Lisa Smith, 59, sidestepped the Arkansas barrier by traveling from their home in Little Rock to wed in Bidwell's native New York, where same-sex marriage has been legal since 2011.

Yet to Ashley Vickers, an event volunteer and mental health technician from Little Rock, having to leave the state to marry her partner, Sara Strickland, "is almost insulting."

House lifts ban on Capitol Hill sledding

The House of Representatives has voted to lift a ban on sledding on the U.S. Capitol grounds, freeing the area for one of Washington's winter delights, a congresswoman from the District of Columbia says. The legislation passed by the House of Representative urges the U.S. Capitol Police not to enforce the law, which has prohibited sledding for security reasons since the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks on the United States.

"Today the common-sense non-enforcement of the sledding ban on Capitol Hill, the way it has been for many years, is assured," Congresswoman Eleanor Holmes Norton said in a statement late on Tuesday.

The provision is not yet scheduled for a vote in the Senate.

In February, Norton made the request to U.S. Capitol Police following news reports that officers, citing security issues, shooed away would-be sledders after a snowfall in the U.S. capital. Norton called the ban "Scrooge-like."

Dozens of people staged a "sled-in" on Capitol Hill in March during a late-winter snowstorm, ignoring the police ban.

Oh good, more Gwyneth Paltrow parenting quotes

Let it be known that Gwyneth Paltrow has relaxed her attitudes about exactly what her two kids are allowed to ingest, finally ending the embargo on "bad" foods, she tells Women's Health. "My food philosophy is nothing should be ruled out," she tells the magazine. "I don't believe in saying, 'You're not allowed that.' If my kids want a Shirley Temple with the radioactive cherry in it, go for it, you know?" So she's gone from outright banning foods she deems inappropriate to laying on some next-level laissez-faire parental guilt-tripping? High marks, ma'am.

Oh, and if you're interested in getting that Goop-endorsed glow that Paltrow rocks on the magazine's cover, it's actually really simple. She says she just believes in "exercise, laughing, having sex, being yourself." So if you're not getting the results you want, clearly you're doing one of those wrong.

Olsen twins to Netflix: 'You got us, dude!'

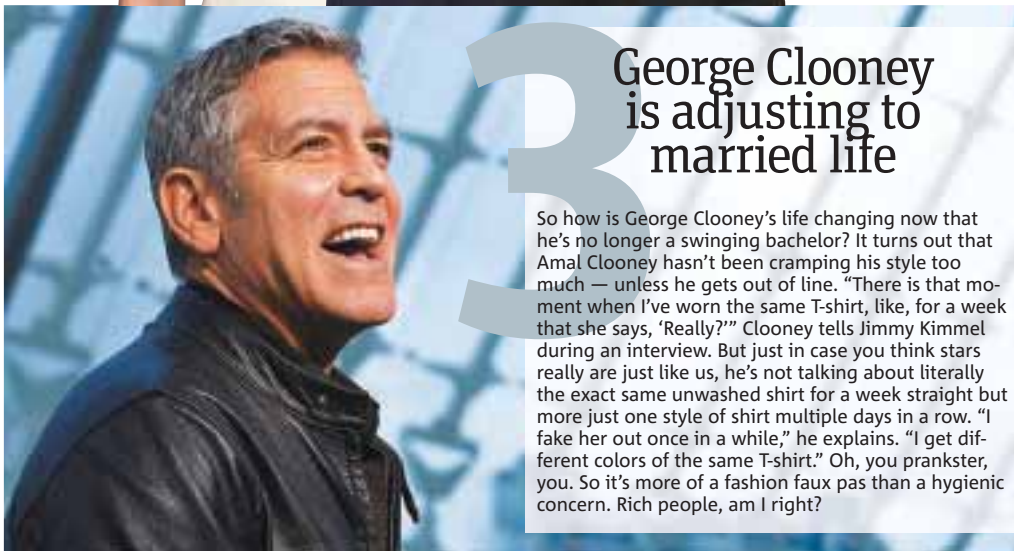

So remember all that talk about how Mary-Kate and Ashley Olsen had no interest in doing "Fuller House" and that was fine because their former co-stars didn't want them around anyway? Yeah, about that. A source tells Life & Style that the twins have had a change of heart and are signing on to reprise their shared role as Michelle Tanner for the Netflix reboot. "They figured it would be a good break from their usual work routine to go and join their old cast members," the source says. "They are both going to join in the reunion in some capacity." This, of course, raises more questions than it answers — like how do you work in two very famous actresses for one part? Or will Michelle have a long-lost evil twin? And what exactly is the Olsen twins' "usual work routine"?

George Clooney is adjusting to married life

So how is George Clooney's life changing now that he's no longer a swinging bachelor? It turns out that Amal Clooney hasn't been cramping his style too much — unless he gets out of line. "There is that moment when I've worn the same T-shirt, like, for a week that she says, 'Really?'" Clooney tells Jimmy Kimmel during an interview. But just in case you think stars really are just like us, he's not talking about literally the exact same unwashed shirt for a week straight but more just one style of shirt multiple days in a row. "I fake her out once in a while," he explains. "I get different colors of the same T-shirt." Oh, you prankster, you. So it's more of a fashion faux pas than a hygienic concern. Rich people, am I right?

Cate Blanchett clears up same-sex relationship history

There was a bit of a hubbub last week when Cate Blanchett told Variety that she has had relationships with women "many times," and Ms. Blanchett would now like to clarify that last bit, if you don't mind. The topic came up because Blanchett stars in the lesbian drama "Carol," which was a hit at Cannes. "Have I had sexual relations with women? The answer is no," she says, adding that the part of her interview where she clarified that the relationships she was referring to weren't sexual had been edited out. The article's author, though, stands by his work, insisting Blanchett was accurately quoted.

The latest video from wickedly funny YouTuber Anna Akana takes the world of police station misogyny and flips it on its head, swapping genders for the aptly

James Corden: What Letterman means to me

Television. The “Late Late Show” host recounts, in his own words, what he learned about the job from Letterman.

“I didn’t grow up here, and David Letterman wasn’t on in Britain,” Corden says, speaking earlier this week at the CBS Summer Soiree. “The first time I ever came to America was in 2006 for ‘The History Boys’ on Broadway. I was staying in what can only be described as an awful apartment in Manhattan, and about a month in, I got incredibly homesick. I’d never been away that long before, and I would go home after every show while a lot of the cast would go out. I just wasn’t in the mood for it.

“I didn’t know about this phenomenon of late-night television that airs at midnight and 11:30 every night. I would get into bed feeling very homesick, not being able to call home or speak to my parents or sisters, and I would put the TV on, and there was this guy. I found a connection with him in the way that so many others have — and in a much deeper sense, over the last 30 years — where it suddenly became clear to me what the power of a late-night host is. It is that you’re checking in with a friend. Suddenly, that last hour of my day stopped being a time where I wished I could ring my parents but became a time where I would really look forward to seeing what this guy was going to do tonight or what he was going to say. He was talking to me, directly to me, in bed. Then I realized the theater was right around the corner. I didn’t even know that! So I would go, and I would walk past it every day.

“If someone told me in 2006 that I would be the person following that show and have something to say, I would never have believed them. And now

I’m here saying I still sort of can’t. It’s not lost on me that it’s an absolute honor to be in my position. I don’t know how long our show will last, but to think there might be somebody somewhere in one place who finds that connection with our show that I found with his those lonely nights would be thrilling for us.

“I sent him an email at the start of the show asking him if we could do an interview with him in his theater, and he sent me the loveliest email, and he said, ‘I hope you don’t mind, I’m not going to do the interview. I think people are sick of hearing from me.’ And I remember thinking at the time he couldn’t have been more wrong, and I still think that now.”

RAPE ON 'GAME OF THRONES' AND ELSEWHERE

We're once again talking about rape on "Game of Thrones." I know this is going to upset people on both sides, but I'm writing this column because it's important to talk about the issue.

Rape figures into a lot of storylines. Unfortunately, it's a reality in this world, and that doesn't look like it's going to change. Personally, I hate seeing it more than I can say. I don't think it's entertaining. I think it's a lazy way to advance plot. I think it's overused, often for shock value instead of as a way to advance a character's storyline.

It also makes sense in some stories. In this week's episode, it was hardly unexpected. Ramsay is a cruel and terrible person. My issue with the scene is that they decided to continue the "torture porn" of Sansa's story. Sansa took some small measure of control at the end of Season 4. Now, she's back with a madman after yet another forced marriage. This after her father was beheaded in front of her, she was abused by a mad king, forced to marry Tyrion, manipulated by Lord Baelish and suffered an attempted gang rape in an alley. Enough.

The rape made sense in terms of where the plot was going, but the issue is with how they're choosing to tell her story. Part of the issue is the way the show has handled rape in the past. For instance, in the book, Daenerys' wedding night was not rape. Still a forced marriage, but the show made it worse than it was, clearly for shock value. It was a stupid change, especially in light of the fact that she then falls in love with her rapist. Then there was the Cersei/Jaime scene that was a rape on the show and not in the book. The issue is with choices the "Game of Thrones" writers are making rather than a terrible thing that is, sadly, the logical next step in the story they chose to tell.

Look, the discussion is important. So, my two cents? You followed the story path in the most logical way. Maybe, "Game of Thrones" showrunners, we need to question why you decided to write this story in the first place.

This week, we leave behind summer in the city for rosé and lobster rolls in the Hamptons. Here's what's new on the scene. EVA KIS

Gurney's Montauk Resort & Seawater Spa

290 Old Montauk Highway
GurneysMontauk.com

LDV Hospitality has completely revamped the food and nightlife scene, with five new spaces on the resort property: Tillie's, a year-round American-style eatery; Corso Coffee, serving Tuscan espresso and locally roasted brews; Scarpetta Beach, the breezier version of the city's iconic Italian spot; The Regent Cocktail Club, an acclaimed craft bar that began in Miami, and boasts a lounge and outdoor deck; and The Beach Club, which will hold weekly Saturday outdoor barbecues. Also new: the Hamptons' first-ever comedy festival on May 28-29.

Montauk Yacht Club

MontaukYachtClub.com

Twin nightlife kings Daniel and Derek Koch will get the brunch crowd on their feet every Sunday afternoon throughout the summer, beginning Memorial Day weekend. They will also reprise their RISE party series on the Saturday evenings of holiday weekends, with DJs, celebrities and live acts. The star power continues to the kitchen with new executive chef Ron Duprat, who brought Haitian and Creole influences to French-Asian fusion cuisine on "Top Chef."

Beautique in Southampton

Capri Hotel, 281 Country Rd.
BeautiqueDining.com

Midtown's upscale modern American restaurant is opening a second location this weekend, taking over the former BLT Steak space in the Capri Hotel. In the kitchen will be teen chef Greg Grossman, who put in time at the buzzy Georgica last summer, firing seasonal dishes with a French touch. You can also order Beautique's grub poolside, in case you don't intend on spending the summer living on mai tais alone.

The Club at Philippe

44 Three Mile Harbor Rd., East Hampton
PhilippeChow.com

After 10 years in NYC, it's time to throw a party — or just create your own nightlife destination. Executive chef Philippe Chow himself will be in the new East End kitchen for opening weekend, serving his signature dishes like Peking Duck, carved tableside and served with housemade pancakes. (There's also a full sushi bar.) After dark, it's time for DJs, specialty cocktails and a new menu of late-night light bites.

Circo Southampton

268 Elm St.

Cirque du soleil just became literal. In place of one Italian brand name — Delmonico's — rises another. The Hamptons outpost of Circo, the upscale circus-themed Italian restaurant, will be a more casual version of its Midtown sister. Expect a beach vibe and a menu that's heavier on seafood dishes, served indoors or outside on a "lush" patio.

Life's a beach

On your radar

Harbor is your new nostalgic beach house

Feel the retro vibes. PROVIDED

After hustling on the city's club scene for 10 years, running the show at NoLita's Southside among others, James "Jamo" Willis was missing the beaches of his native Australia. So last summer, between DJing regular Sunday gigs at the Hamptons' go-to dance spot Surf Lodge, he found a restaurant space on Montauk Lake and turned it into Harbor, opening this weekend.

The goal: to re-create the beachside bars Willis grew up with on Sydney's Bondi Beach. "We've really created a great open space, with a Mediterranean-style menu and beautiful decor that's a little bit Australian, a little bit like you're in Capri," he says.

The menu spans fresh-caught fish and wood-fired pizza (there's also a raw bar), with dinner service Wednesday through Sunday and lunch on the weekends. If you're hanging out on Harbor's private beach, where dogs are welcome, grab Greek salads, wraps and fresh-pressed juices from the adjacent Booby Trap café (open until 5 a.m.!) while you lay out on the sand or play bocce, Ping-Pong and volleyball. After sunset, expect movie screenings on the beach, too.

Willis and his fiancée, Miasha PROVIDED

At 10:30 p.m., Harbor turns into the only nightclub east of East Hampton, with beach parties and live music. Performers will span genres, but it'll all have a note of nostalgia — think an old-school mix of everything worth remembering from the '80s and '90s, from rock to hip-hop, reggae and dance. What it won't be like is the Southside outpost he's hosted in the past. "This is scaled back, a lot more grown up," he says. "It's not like a crazy nightclub."

But if you like being surrounded by mellow Aussies (Harbor is run by Willis' countrymen) and drinking cocktails beyond pina colodas in a retro beach house, then you've found your new Hamptons go-to.

"This is my dream," says Willis, "to get out of the nightlife and do it on the ocean." Eva Kis

But Voice Afire makes it much more affordable, starting with a reception stocked by Wines of Chile, followed by performances from the Met's Milan Milisavljevic on viola and Juilliard's Jennifer Chu on piano.

 In the modern dating world, what kind of expectations come with a drunken one-night-stand and how much shame are we supposed to feel – or is ambivalence finally OK? Neil LaBute's newest play, which opened this week, explores these themes. It's also the stage debut of Amanda Seyfried ("Les Misérables").

Fine art in Florida

VISIT ST. PETERSBURG/CLEARWATER

Dali Museum

Disney, beaches and oranges are the things most commonly associated with Florida, but if you're more interested in Monet than Mickey Mouse, the Sunshine State also has a wealth of art museums.

One of the best is the Salvador Dali Museum in that vacation haven, St. Petersburg. The Spanish surrealist was friends with the museum's founders, Reynolds and Eleanor Morse, and what began as their private collection became this world-class museum with 1,300 of the artist's works, the largest such collection outside Europe. It's especially good if you want to see his early works, particularly his more conventional landscapes.

St. Petersburg also has the Museum of Fine Arts, with a permanent collection that's one of the finest in Florida and includes Renoir, Monet, Cezanne, Willem de Kooning, Georgia O'Keeffe and many more.

Not surprisingly, Miami has a large number of good art museums, with one of the most popular being the Perez Art Museum Miami in Museum Park. It displays 20th and 21st century art with a remarkable collection of Latin American works in particular, reflecting Miami's diverse population. The Frost Museum also has an extensive collection of contemporary Latin American and American art, while European art is more the focus at the Bass Museum of Art in Miami Beach.

Orlando also has a thriving arts scene and an outstanding museum in the Mennello Museum of American Art in Loch Haven Park.

It's only small compared to the other museums mentioned, but with a focus on American art, the museum certainly has depth. It contains a wide selection of extraordinary work by the primitive artist Earl Cunningham and a lovely lakeside sculpture garden. So remember: Florida can be about Dali, not just Disney. INSIGHT GUIDES | MIKE GERRARD AND DONNA DAILEY

How to cruise the Yucatan Peninsula

ALEX HAVRET/APA PUBLICATIONS

Snorkeling tour in Cozumel

For cruisers who want a taste of Mexico's stunning Caribbean coast, head to the beautiful island of Cozumel.

The most common route is to dock on the island — where you will typically find several ships lined up in a row — and book a shore excursion to the mainland either through your cruise line or a tour operator. How much time your ship spends in port will determine how much of the Yucatan you can see.

SHUTTERSTOCK

For those who are staying late into the evening (as some Carnival ships have started doing recently on the nights they have concerts onboard) you can swim in a cenote (an underground river that runs through caves) or check out Chichen Itza, the area's most famous Mayan ruin. It's a long day, but both are worth the trek in from the island. Then again, so are the beaches — which are lined with palm trees and sit on clear blue water. And don't forget the snorkeling, especially since the reef here is the second largest in the world. INSIGHT GUIDES | SHERRI EISENBERG

COURTESY OF NAUTICUS, NORFOLK, VA

Norfolk, Virginia, promises so many real-life nautical, artistic and nature adventures, the kids just might abandon their tablets and online games.

Start at Nauticus (www.nauticus.org), the massive exploration center on the Elizabeth River. It's all about ev-everything on, under and around water. Stand on the observation deck while watching ships and tugs sail by and learn about maritime commerce. Command a submersible exploration vehicle and collect samples via a robotic arm. Budding meteorologists analyze weather patterns, experience storms in a hurricane simulator and discover the latest in tsunami research. There are shark touch tanks and marine life labs for future marine biologists.

The battleship Wisconsin is berthed here. A self-guided tour is included in the admission fee. For an additional cost, the Topside Tour visits other areas, including the Captain's Quarters and bridge. It's a 90-minute tour for those 8 and up.

Norfolk is the world's largest naval base. See the aircraft carriers, destroyers and subs from the water on a two-hour narrated cruise (www.navalbasecruises.com) or a 45-minute bus tour. If you're lucky, one of the massive ships will be in the even more massive dry dock.

Take a tour of the Captain's Quarters on the battleship Wisconsin.

Beware of barbecued bugs

What ever happened to the good old days when the worst things we had to fear on Memorial Day were traffic jams and indigestion?

This year, it's all about food poisoning by the nasty E. coli, salmonella, and Listeria bugs lurking in hamburgers, hot dogs, and chicken nuggets at millions of backyard barbecues. The U.S. Meat and Poultry Hotline's advice is to grill meat and chicken products longer and hotter. They fail to caution that high-temperature grilling forms lots of cancer-causing compounds. Do we really need to choose between food poisoning and cancer? Luckily, enterprising food manufacturers and processors have met this challenge head-on by developing a great variety of healthful, delicious, convenient plant-based veggie burgers, veggie dogs, and soy nuggets.

These wholesome foods don't harbor nasty bugs or cancer-causing compounds. They don't even carry cholesterol, saturated fats, drugs, or pesticides. And, they are right there, in the frozen food section of our supermarket.

This Memorial Day, let's stay safe on the roads and safe at the family barbecue.

Rangers fall in wild one

NHL. The Lightning earned a 6-5 OT win in Game 3 Wednesday night.

The Tampa Bay Lightning are in the midst of overthrowing "The King." The Lightning registered their second consecutive six goal game against Henrik Lundqvist Wednesday night in Game 3 of the Eastern Conference Final as they dumped the Rangers, 6-5, in overtime at Amalie Arena to take a 2-1 series lead.

Nikita Kucherov's left-handed shot just 3:33 into the extra session blew right past Lundqvist to give the Lightning the walk-off win.

The Rangers did show plenty of resiliency to get the game to overtime as they were down 4-2 at one point in the second period and were down 5-4 with less than two minutes left in the third period. But a

NFL. Jets surprise many as Gailey names Geno the 2015 starting QB

Rumors of Geno Smith's demise have, apparently, been greatly exaggerated.

The end is not near for Smith, the former second-round pick who is set to enter his third year in the league after multiple benchings, 34 career interceptions and one missed team meeting in San Diego. On Wednesday, following just the second session of organized team activities (OTAs), offensive coordinator Chan Gailey dropped the bomb that Smith will enter the season as the team's starting quarterback, this with more than two months left before training camp.

"Right now, Geno's the starter. To me [head] coach [Todd] Bowles has said, I say it, I think everybody's said it - that's the way it sits and that's the way we expect it to be," Gailey said.

When asked why, at this point in preseason, the decision could be made, Gailey simply said, "Why not? Because Geno is the starter." KRISTIAN DYER

FANTASY FOOTBALL: AVOID DRAFTING THESE ROOKIES

There is a sect of fantasy owner that loves the excitement that comes with the unknown. They'll be the ones reaching for rookies not because they're in a good spot — but simply because they're rookies.

We've already discussed the sizable first-year upside of Melvin Gordon, Nelson Agholor, Breshad Perriman and Tevin Coleman. Now let's flip it to the negative side and identify the rookies to avoid in fantasy drafts.

Gurley a ghost

The Rams took Todd Gurley with the idea he'll be their foundation back for the next six to eight years. So they've already stated they won't rush him back off his November ACL tear, a hint that he could open the season on the PUP list. Even once Gurley does get on the field, he'll be dealing with a bottom-barrel offensive line, the presence of a competent backup in Tre Mason and a schedule that

Rookie running back Todd Gurley won't have much of an offensive line to run behind. / GETTY IMAGES includes games against the Ravens, Cardinals, Lions and Seahawks between Weeks 11 and 16. Gurley's big name makes him a lock to be overdrafted.

Jaguars stink

The allure of the three-down back is hard to resist because it's so rare in today's NFL. Many people, myself included, fell victim to the promises of a massive Toby Gerhart workload last year. The biggest problem was a Jaguars offense that failed to sustain drives and provided so few scoring opportunities. They project to be better this year with the addition

MLB pickups of the week

If you can, try and snag these three guys this week:

- Brandon Barnes, OF, Rockies — With Corey Dickerson battling plantar fasciitis, Barnes will be getting valuable starts in Coors.
- Enrique Burgos, RP, Diamondbacks — It's possible Burgos will run away with the closer's job after Addison Reed's demotion.
- Matt Wieters, C, Orioles — The contract-year catcher finally appears close to returning from elbow surgery.

of Julius Thomas and a step forward from Blake Bortles, but it's still an uphill battle for new feature back T.J. Yeldon. He's a better dynasty prospect than redraft as he grows with the Jags.

A cub among Bears

Kevin White is a freak physical specimen, but it remains to be seen if that will immediately translate to the NFL. That concern is amplified when we add in other factors such as market share of targets and a conservative John Fox scheme that will be run-based in an effort to hide mistake-prone Jay Cutler. With Alshon Jeffery, Martellus Bennett and Matt Forte all ahead of White on the target totem pole, the No. 7 overall pick is a real threat to disappoint.

NFL news

The NFL's decision to move extra points back to the 15-yard line won't affect fantasy scoring very much. Over the last two years, NFL kickers have made 96 percent of attempts between 31 and 33 yards. Although that four percent difference should make coaches go for two more often, in reality it won't. The one team's players that do get a slight boost are the Eagles, as we know hyper-aggressive Chip Kelly will be among the league leaders in two-point attempts.

If you worked as an hourly and/or non-exempt employee at the European Bakery Café restaurant located at 135 Columbus Avenue between October 15, 2007 and February 3, 2015 (the "Settlement Class") you could get money from a settlement.

A settlement of a class action lawsuit (Moises Dolores, et al. v. European Café, LLC) has been reached. The lawsuit claims that the restaurant did not pay non-exempt employees minimum wage, overtime premiums, and spread of hours premiums, and withheld certain gratuities from delivery workers. European Café and the other Defendants deny these allegations and any liability or wrongdoing.

The settlement provides $242,160.38 to be distributed to class members based on the number of workweeks they worked during the Class Period, whether they worked full or part-time, and whether they worked as a delivery employee. If you believe that you are entitled to receive settlement funds, you must contact Class Counsel, Pelton & Associates PC by phone 212-385-9700, by email at pelton@peltonlaw.com or in person at 111 Broadway, Suite 1503, New York, NY 10006, to confirm your membership in the settlement class and update your contact information. If you do not contact Class Counsel by October 12, 2015, you will not be able to obtain money from the settlement. For more information: (212) 385-9700 or pelton@peltonlaw.com
